What You Will Learn:

Day One will cover: The basics of using Young Living Essential Oils and Supplements in animals, why certain animals are more sensitive to oils than other animals or humans, and common views regarding the toxicity of oils in the veterinary community. Common "hidden" toxins used in homes every day, what it means for our animals, and how natural products can replace them. Why poor quality oils can cause toxicity issues in animals, where they are found, and what it may mean to our pets. Case studies complete with laboratory data will be presented, helping to document the safety and efficacy of truly medical grade essential oils - especially in cats. Why animals should be exposed to essential oils every day, and the easiest ways to achieve this. Learn the individual properties of my favorite animal oils and the different methods of application - oral, topical, diffusion, misting, and so much more! You will also see video clips demonstrating the different methods and techniques of oil application on live animals. Then - get ready for an extensive discussion of individual conditions - covering every animal from fish to rabbits, snakes to birds, and cats to dogs. From hot spots to urinary incontinence - you'll learn recommended oils, how to use the oils, recommended supplements, and how to evaluate responses.

Day Two continues with conditions of dogs, goats, sheep, llamas, horses, cows, and more - and then we will head into emotional work with animals. Don't worry if you don't work on every form of animal - this information can be shared across species! This class helps to stress the individual properties of oils - so you can apply them to every case - whether Cat, Rat, Horse or Human. You will learn even more about starting points, methods of application, and evaluating responses. Video demonstrations will also be shown in this class. An in depth discussion of Raindrop Technique in horses as well as the current theory of why some horses "welt" with oil application, along with recommendations on "what to do next". Case studies will be presented, with plenty of opportunity for questions. Then, everyone's favorite, emotional work with animals. Learn how to help rescue animals deal with their emotional trauma and baggage, help introduce new animals to each other, work with anxiety, protect pets from "toxic" owner energy, and so much more! After this class, you should feel comfortable with oil selections, starting points of use, evaluation of response, and modification of application. This class builds on the information presented in Day One - so it cannot be taken by itself.

Day Three is the Advanced Course. During this class, oil benefits and recommendations for Animal Professionals will be discussed; Boarding, Grooming, Veterinary Practices, Organic Farms, Acupuncture, Chiropractic, Massage, Reiki, Animal Communication and more! Learn about using oils with homeopathy, prescription medications, herbs, and other natural therapies. Case studies will be "worked up" hand and hand, and you will be guided to formulate your very own regimens. You will get full feedback on the regimens YOU create, with real life scenarios and roll play. Feel the triumph of working through a difficult case. You will be instructed on how to explore a condition - listing symptoms, causes, and oil options. You will leave feeling even more comfortable with formulating and starting a regimen, monitoring responses, and modifying your course of action. Learn about the latest cutting edge ways that essential oils are being used in the Veterinary Hospital including; Neuro-Auricular Technique, Auricular Adjustment, Roll-On Applications and Techniques, Injections, Intravenous use of Oils, and more! The advanced day is a wonderful open format - where all of your questions can be answered. Submit your toughest "oil" case prior to class, for a chance for it to be presented and worked up! This class can only be taken if Day 1 & 2 have been completed.

What You Will Get:

Besides an amazing education, all attendees will receive printed class handouts and a certificate of attendance. In some locations, live animal demonstrations are permitted. When not available, video footage of the demonstration will be shown. There is a possibility of coordinating small animal demonstrations at the Orlando Advanced Class - but it is not guaranteed. If you live in the Orlando area, and have a small animal (cat, dog, bird, exotic pet) that you would like to "volunteer" for demonstration purposes, please contact me.

Hotel Information

We have a wonderful hotel selected very near to the Coronado Springs Resort where the Young Living Convention will be held. The Royal Plaza www.RoyalPlaza.com will host the classes, and has made hotel rooms available for attendees at $89 per night - plus taxes! AND - I have negotiated with the hotel to include FREE INTERNET access with the room, as well as to waive the $8 a day resort fees!!! This rate is for single/double occupancy and can include a King Sized bed or Two Doubles. All rooms include a twin sofa sleeper as well. Refrigerators are available to rent for $25 for your entire stay - or $22.50 when reservations are made online. Parking at the hotel is available for $10 per day.

The Royal Plaza contains its own restaurant, but is also located within a 10 minute walk to Downtown Disney or the Crossroads Shopping Center. At either location you can find food, restaurants, shops and more. A Whole Foods Store is located within a 15 minute drive of the hotel. The Coronado Springs Resort (where the Convention is actually held) - is HUGE!

Apparently, it is possible to stay on location and still have to walk 15-20 minutes to the Convention Center! Wow! The Coronado Convention Center will apparently have free parking at its site. From our selected hotel - it is about a 10 minute drive (approximately 4 miles) to the Convention Center. It has been recommended to rent a car instead of relying on a shuttle or taxi, and as late September is the slow season in Orlando - rental rates should be very good. There is an Enterprise Car Rental Center on site at the Royal Plaza - but shopping around for a deal is a good plan!
